

Society Published Journals Collection

Convenient, cost-effective access to 32 premium titles from some of the world's most prestigious medical societies

Source: American College of Chest Physicians, American Diabetes Association, American Medical Association (AMA), American Occupational Therapy Association, American Society for Clinical Investigation, American Society of Health-System Pharmacists (ASHP), Canadian Medical Association, Elsevier, Endocrine Society, Journal of Bone & Joint Surgery, National League for Nursing, Publishing House of Neural Regeneration Res., RCN Publishing Company, Royal College of Physicians, Texas Heart Institute, The American Academy of Audiology

With thousands of scientific journals published globally each year, selecting the highest quality information to support researchers' needs is increasingly more challenging. One way to pinpoint exceptional content is to look to society-published titles: multiple studies indicate that some of the most influential and highly cited journals available today are produced by societies. Now, you can build your full text library with a full range of these trusted journal titles, conveniently grouped into one cost effective collection—the Ovid Society-Published Journals Collection.

The Ovid Society-Published Journals Collection enriches your full text offerings through a selection of 32 prestigious titles available through the Journals@Ovid interface.

In addition, many of these titles represent some of the most influential journals in their respective fields: The Annals of Internal Medicine, produced by the American College of Physicians, has received high marks for its peer-reviewed, quality information geared toward the practicing physician, while Diabetes, the essential publication of the American Diabetes Association, is a resource that no practitioner or researcher in the field should be without.

Ovid Exclusive

Interface:

n OvidSP